

Established in 1880, Alpha Boys' School is a residential vocational school for at-risk boys. Since 1884, the Religious Sisters of Mercy have managed the Alpha Boys School and are responsible for guiding the school as it developed into one of Jamaica's premiere sources of musical training and cultural inspiration.

From jazz greats like Dizzy Reece and Jo Jo Harriott to ska pioneers Don Drummond, Lester Sterling, Rico Rodriguez and Johnny 'Dizzy' Moore not to mention current bandmaster Winston 'Sparrow' Martin, reggae stalwarts Leroy Horsemouth Wallace, Leroy Smart and more, the list of Alpha's musical graduates parallels the very history of Jamaican popular culture itself. Alpha boys still represent a steady stream of the brightest solo performers and contribute to the top studio, touring and session bands.

The Woodwork Shop

at Alpha Boys' School

Fine handcrafted wooden products
available via the Service Bureau

Effective June 1, 2014

Welcome

Alpha's Woodworking Programme began in 2002 as a means of teaching our students about furniture building and restoration techniques while raising much needed funds to support the educational and vocational mission of the school. Later we added pen-making and our handmade products by Alpha boys now include a wide range of exquisite items for the home and office. Featuring fine wood products made from Blue Mahoe, a signature Jamaican hard wood, spanish elm, mahogany and cedar, the Alpha Boys' School Woodshop is also ready to complete custom projects and restoration.
